Curriculum Guidelines

1	Court Purposes, Environment, and Processes Visioning and Strategic Planning require understanding of the purposes of courts and how court management delivers on the American promise of equal justice under law, due process, and judicial independence and impartiality. Visioning and Strategic Planning help court leaders and their justice and community partners ensure that the future of the courts and the justice system matches their enduring purposes and responsibilities. Their plans take into account alternative and current court jurisdiction, structure, and performance; case processing; and the types and numbers of cases being processed.
2	Fundamentals When implementing visioning and strategic planning, court leaders, future commissions, and staff draw upon proven principles, methods, and techniques. They and others they oversee use the most appropriate visioning and strategic planning tools.
3	Organizational Foundations The court must have the capacity to produce a long-term strategic direction built through an inclusive and collaborative visioning and planning process. Adequate organizational foundation produces understanding and commitment about what the court, their justice partners, and the community wish to achieve, how they will do it, and when .
4	Change and Alignment Visioning and Strategic Planning facilitate change; link visioning, planning, and action; and move the court, its judges, staff, and their justice partners in a common direction toward shared commitments.
5	Strategic Thinking When carrying out Visioning and Strategic Planning, court leaders think and act futuristically and strategically by anticipating and promoting change.
